We hope everyone has had a great summer! Check out these three interesting premises liability-related blog articles written by Scott Bucci. We would love to hear your thoughts.

Premises-Liability Practice Tips:

"Fight for Post-Accident Statements"

"Federal Court is Not All Bad"

"Try to Find 'Affirmative Conduct' in Premises Cases"

Be sure to bookmark the CSFGB Blog for future articles written for plaintiff trial lawyers and their clients .

M. Scott Bucci

Scott Bucci spent over eight years of his career defending Walmart, Sam's Club, Costco, Big Lots, and other big box stores in state and federal courts in Virginia. In 2007, he switched gears and began representing plaintiffs injured in some of those same big box stores. He is at home in federal court, having litigated over 150 cases in the Eastern and Western Districts of Virginia. Mr. Bucci is AV Rated and listed in Best Lawyers in America. He often co-counsels and joint ventures in premises cases in state and federal courts. Scott appreciates referrals, welcomes joint ventures, and encourages conversation about tough cases, so don't hesitate to call and pick his brain.
